

Are you an American Indian Undergraduate looking for a unique and valuable summer work experience?

American Indian Undergraduate Internship in Public Health

The Health Disparities Research Center and Pathways Into Public Health is inviting American Indian, Alaska Native, or First Nations undergraduate students to apply for a Paid summer internship, an excellent opportunity to work in a public health research setting.

Students accepted will also receive a stipend for housing and moving expenses.

The Health Disparities Research Center (HDRC) conducts active research in a variety of public health topics, including maternal and child health, adolescent health, and diabetes and nutrition. We have multiple research project sites, many of which are on tribal lands, and work with a variety of tribal communities and organizations. The Health Disparities Research Center - Sanford Research/USD has two locations: Sioux Falls, SD & Spearfish, SD.

If you are interested in learning more, please contact:

Jen Prasek
Health Disparities Research Center
900 W. Delaware Street
Sioux Falls, SD 57104
Phone: (605) 328-0412
E-mail: prasekj@sanfordhealth.org

Deadline for applications is March 13, 2009

Sanford Research/USD

